AUTHOR BIOGRAPHIES

Gordon G. Chang is the author of booklets The Great U.S.-China Tech War and Losing South Korea. His previous books are The Coming Collapse of China and Nuclear Showdown: North Korea Takes On the World, both from Random House. Mr. Chang lived and worked in China and Hong Kong for almost two decades, most recently in Shanghai, as Counsel to the American law firm Paul Weiss, and earlier in Hong Kong as Partner in the international law firm Baker & McKenzie. His writings have appeared in The New York Times, The Wall Street Journal, Barron's, Commentary, The National Interest, and Newsweek, among other publications. Mr. Chang has given numerous briefings to U.S. government agencies, universities, research institutions, and industry and investor groups. He has also appeared before the House Committee on Foreign Affairs and the U.S.-China Economic and Security Review Commission. He has frequently appeared on CNN, Fox News Channel, Fox Business Network, Bloomberg, CNBC, and MSNBC and is a regular co-host and guest on John Batchelor's CBS Eye on the World. He has served two terms as trustee of Cornell University.

Tara O, Ph.D., is the author of The Collapse of North Korea: Challenges, Planning and Geopolitics of Unification. She is a Fellow at the East Asia Research Center and the Institute for Corean-American Studies. Dr. O is also an Adjunct Fellow at the Hudson Institute. She serves on the board of directors of the International Council on Korean Studies. Her research areas include South Korea's political and economic system, the Korean contingency and unification, U.S. alliance relationships in Asia, human rights in North Korea, and the social integration of North Korean defectors. A U.S. Air Force veteran, Dr. O worked on national security, intelligence, alliance, and political-military issues at the Pentagon, the United Nations Command/Combined Forces Command/U.S. Forces Korea, and the U.S. European Command. She holds a BA in International Relations from the University of California at Davis, an MPA in Public Policy and International Affairs from Princeton University, and a Ph.D. in Public Policy from the University of Texas at Austin.

George A. Hutchinson is Managing Editor of the International Journal of Korean Studies and a board member of the International Council on Korean Studies. He is also a Ph.D. candidate at George Mason University's Schar School of Policy and Government and a Senior Regional Planner at SecuriFense Inc. advising on military basing issues in the Republic of Korea. He previously served as an officer in the U.S. Air Force, specializing as a Northeast Asia Foreign Area Officer, Logistics Readiness Officer, and Korean linguist. Mr. Hutchinson's writings have been published in the International Journal of Korean Studies, U.S. Naval Institute Proceedings, and the Air Force Journal of Logistics, as well as reports by the Korea Economic Institute of America and Marine Corps University Press. Mr. Hutchinson holds a master's in logistics management from the U.S. Air Force Institute of Technology and is pursuing a Ph.D. in Public Policy at George Mason University's Schar School of Policy and Government.

Greg Scarlatoiu is the Executive Director of the Committee for Human Rights in North Korea (HRNK) in Washington, D.C. Since he joined HRNK in July 2011, he has coordinated 43 HRNK publications addressing North Korea's human rights situation and the operation of its regime. Mr. Scarlatoiu is vice president of the International Council on Korean Studies and co-director of the Korea Club in Washington, D.C. Prior to HRNK, Mr. Scarlatoiu was with the Korea Economic Institute. He has over six years of experience in international development on projects funded by the U.S. Agency for International Development, the World Bank, and the Asian Development Bank. For 18 years, he has authored and broadcast the weekly Korean language "Scarlatoiu Column" to North Korea for Radio Free Asia. A seasoned lecturer on Korean issues, Mr. Scarlatoiu has appeared as an expert witness at several Congressional hearings on North Korean human rights. He is a visiting professor at the Hankuk University of Foreign Studies in Seoul as well as instructor and coordinator of the Japan and Korea seminar at the U.S. State Department's Foreign Service Institute. He holds a M.A. in Law and Diplomacy from the Fletcher School, Tufts University, and a B.A. and M.A. from Seoul National University. He completed MIT Seminar XXI in April 2017. Mr. Scarlatoiu was awarded the titles "Citizen of Honor, City of Seoul" and "Citizen of Honor, City of Buzau" (his hometown). He is fluent in Korean, French, and Romanian. A native of Romania born and raised under that country's communist regime, Mr. Scarlatoiu is a naturalized U.S. citizen.

Gabriel Jonsson is Associate Professor in Korean Studies at Stockholm University, Department of Asian, Middle East and Turkish Studies. He received his B.A. in East Asian Studies in 1987, and his Ph.D. in Korean Studies in 1996, both from Stockholm University. He graduated from the Korean Language Institute at Yonsei University in 1986. Professor Jonsson's teachings include Korean language, history, politics, economics and inter-Korean relations. His research focuses on inter-Korean relations, South Korean domestic politics and the two Koreas' relations with the UN. His latest publications include, Towards Korean Reconciliation: Socio-Cultural Exchanges and Cooperation (Ashgate Publishing, 2006); Peacekeeping in the Korean Peninsula (Korea Institute for National Unification, 2009); Consolidation of Democracy in South Korea? (Stockholm University, 2014) and South Korea in the United Nations: Global Governance, Inter-Korean Relations and Peace Building (World Scientific, 2017). Professor Jonsson is a regular visitor to South Korea.

Kyu-hyun Jo, Ph.D., earned his Ph.D. in Modern Korean and East Asian History from the University of Chicago, completing his dissertation, "The Rise of the South Korean Left, the Death of Unitary Socialism, and the Origins of the Korean War, 1945-1947" under the supervision of Professor Bruce Cumings. He also earned a BA and MA in History from University of Chicago. Dr. Jo's research areas include modern Korean history, modern East Asian history, the South Korean Left, and the origins of colonialism in Korea.
