AUTHOR BIOGRAPHIES

Hwa Yu serves as the Chief Executive Officer of Delta One LLC, a specialized consultancy that advises both U.S. and international clients regarding defense industrial cooperation, offset agreements, Cybersecurity Maturity Model Certification (CMMC), and research programs. Her Security Cooperation experience comes from working for fifteen years in the Joint U.S. Military Affairs Group–Korea (JUSMAG-K). She holds three master’s degrees—two in law from Georgetown University and one in defense project management from Korea National Defense University; and two B.A.s, in law, and English language and literature. She is also an author, highlighted by publishing English language articles in Korean news media discussing Reciprocal Defense Procurement Memorandum of Understanding (RDP MOU) status abroad.

Brian Hobbs achieved a PhD at Virginia Tech with a focus on defense industry offsets. He has an M.A. in National Security Affairs, a B.A. with a double major in psychology and East Asian languages & cultures, and proficiency in Japanese, Korean, and Chinese languages. As a U.S. Air Force Foreign Area Officer, he taught at the U.S. Air Force Academy and the Korea Air Force Academy, and managed Foreign Military Sales (FMS) cases at Air Force International Affairs (SAF/IA). Since leaving active duty, Security Cooperation expertise has included work at the Defense Security Cooperation Agency, at the F-35 Joint Program Office, in industry, and as the senior author for Defense Security Cooperation University case studies.

Nykolus Alvut is a Ph.D. Candidate in Conflict Analysis and Resolution at Nova Southeastern University, a former Marine Corps Intelligence/Operations Planner, and fluent Korean linguist. He has served in multiple assignments supporting the National Security Agency, Defense Intelligence Agency, U.S. Indo-Pacific Command, U.S. Cyber Command, and currently works for the U.S. Army Headquarters, United States Forces Korea as the Capabilities and Assessments Branch Chief. Mr. Alvut holds a bachelor’s degree in Intelligence Studies from the American Military University, and a master’s degree in Strategic Intelligence from the National Intelligence University. Mr. Alvut brings over 15 years of experience to his research, specializing in strategic analysis, national strategy, integrated deterrence, and international relations. He has presented to large-scale audiences in professional and academic forums including the Pacific Operational Science and Technology conference, and the Peace and Conflict Studies Journal Conferences.

Dr. Kelvin Mote (Colonel, U.S. Army), is a practitioner in National Security and International Relations, currently serving as the Deputy Director for the Army Strategic Education Program at the U.S. Army War College in Carlisle, Pennsylvania. He has served in multiple assignments as a strategic planner focused on the Indo-Pacific and Southwest Asia. Dr. Mote holds a master's degree in national security from the University of Maryland Global Campus, a master's degree in strategic studies from the US Army War College, and a doctorate in organizational leadership from Creighton University. Colonel Mote's publications include an article in Air and Space Power Journal advocating for revitalization of joint nuclear doctrine. Colonel Mote also presented Multi-Domain Operations at the Indo-Pacific Command Information Operations Symposium. His recent War College publication "The Future of the Joint Warfighting Headquarters: An Alternative Approach to the Joint Task Force," focused on organizing for coalition warfare.

Kyu-hyun Jo received his Ph.D. in Modern Korean and East Asian History from the University of Chicago in June 2019. His research interests are in Korea-U. S. relations, U.S.-East Asia relations, the Cold War, decolonization, and the Korean War. His interests include using social science theories for historical analysis. He is currently a Senior Lecturer in East Asian Studies at the University of Malaya, where he teaches modern Korean history and modern East Asian history. He has published articles in the Journal of Territorial and Maritime Studies; Territory, Politics, Governance; The University of Toronto Journal of History; Asia-Pacific Viewpoint; Asian Politics and Policy; The Review of Korean Studies; Korea Journal; Acta Koreana; and Korean Studies (Hawai'i) among others. He is also the author of Japanese Judicial Imperialism and the Origins of the Coercive Illegality of Japan's Annexation of Korea: A Study of Unequal Treaties Between Korea and Japan, 1876-1910 (Palgrave-MacMillan, 2023), published in May 2023; The Dawn of War in South Korea (1947-1950): The South Korean Workers' Party and the April Third Massacre (Springer, 2024); and East

Asian International Relations in History: The Long and Stormy 20th Century (Springer, 2024).

Olivia Enos is a senior fellow at Hudson Institute, specializing in human rights and national security in Asia, with a focus on China, North Korea, Hong Kong, Burma, and Cambodia. Her work covers democracy, governance, religious freedom, and refugee issues. She teaches a course on countering authoritarianism in Asia as an adjunct professor in Georgetown University's Democracy and Governance Program and writes a regular Forbes column on human rights and security in Asia. She is also an adjunct fellow at Pacific Forum. Previously, Ms. Enos was Washington director at the Committee for Freedom in Hong Kong Foundation (CFHK) and a senior policy analyst in the Heritage Foundation's Asian Studies Center. She has testified before Congress, including the House Foreign Affairs Committee, the Congressional-Executive Commission on China, and the Tom Lantos Human Rights Commission, and has briefed senior U.S. government officials. Her work has appeared in the New York Times, Wall Street Journal, Washington Post, Foreign Policy, and she has been featured on CNN, BBC, and Fox News. Ms. Enos holds an MA in Asian studies from Georgetown University and a BA in government from Patrick Henry College. She lives with her husband and son on Capitol Hill.

Gordon G. Chang is the author of the new book Plan Red: China's Project to Destroy America. His other works include The Coming Collapse of China, Nuclear Showdown: North Korea Takes On the World, and Losing South Korea. He is a columnist at Newsweek and writes regularly for The Hill and other publications. Mr. Chang has given briefings at the National Intelligence Council, Central Intelligence Agency, State Department, and the Pentagon. Chang has appeared before the House Committee on Foreign Affairs and the U.S.-China Economic and Security Review Commission. He frequently appears on Fox News, Fox Business, Newsmax TV, CNBC, Bloomberg Television, CNN, and MSNBC. He lived and worked in China and Hong Kong for almost two decades practicing law. He served two terms as a trustee of Cornell University.

Greg Scarlatoiu is President and CEO of the Committee for Human Rights in North Korea (HRNK). From 2011 to 2024, he served as Executive Director, overseeing the publication of more than 50 reports on North Korea's prison camps, regime dynamics, vulnerable groups, and information environment. He is also President of the International Council on Korean Studies (ICKS) and has taught at Yonsei University since 2022, previously serving eight years on the faculty at Hankuk University of Foreign Studies. For 22 years, Scarlatoiu authored the Korean-language “Scarlatoiu Column” for Radio Free Asia (RFA). He has held positions at the Korea Economic Institute (KEI) and in international development. He holds an M.A. in Law and Diplomacy from the Fletcher School at Tufts University and both M.A. and B.A. degrees from Seoul National University. He completed the MIT XXI Seminar for national security leaders (2016–2017) and received multiple honors, including the Global Peace Award (2023), the Korean Unification Contribution Award (2022), and honorary citizenships from Seoul and his hometown, Buzău, Romania. Born and raised in communist Romania, Scarlatoiu is a naturalized U.S. citizen. He is fluent in Korean and French and a native Romanian speaker.
